Inducement Policy for the Provision of Investment and Ancillary Services

1. Objective

- 1.1. The goal of this Inducement Policy for the Provision of Investment and Ancillary Services (the Policy) is to ensure that while providing investment and/or ancillary services to the clients and performing investment activities (the Investment Services), Luminor Bank AS (the Bank), acts honestly, fairly and professionally, in accordance with the best interests of its clients, avoids conflicts of interest and implements all necessary measures to identify conflicts of interest arising due to the monetary or non-monetary benefit received from or paid to third persons or in the course of the provision of the Investment Services to the client.
- 1.2. An inducement is usually considered as a payment or other benefit given by one person to another in relation to the services provided to the client. For example, that can be a payment made by a company providing investment services to another person who brought a client to that company. In this situation, there is a risk that such inducement may affect the receiving person so that it will not act in accordance with the best interests of its clients.
- 1.3. For the purpose of this Policy, Inducement is considered to be any benefit paid to or received from the third persons by the Bank, i.e. reward, commission fee and other monetary or non-monetary benefits related to the provision of investment services to the clients.
- 1.4. Compliance department of the Bank performs control of due implementation of the Policy.

2. Restrictions on payment and receiving Inducement

- 2.1. The Bank may pay or receive Inducement in relation to the provision of investment services, only in cases where the respective Inducements comply with all conditions provided in Section 2 of the Policy below and they: (a) are designed to enhance the quality of services provided to the client (this applies to payments received from the order execution places and for the purpose of investment research performed by the Bank); and (b) do not impair compliance with the Bank's duty act honestly, fairly and professionally in accordance with the best interests of its clients.
- 2.2. As indicated in paragraph 2.1(a) of this Policy, Inducement may be considered as that designed to enhance the quality of services provided to the client where the following conditions are satisfied on an ongoing basis:
 - 2.2.1. It is justified by the provision of additional or higher-level services to the relevant client in the proportion to the level of the Inducement received, such as: (i) the provision of non-independent investment advice on and access to a wide range of suitable financial instruments including an appropriate number of instruments from third party product providers having no close links with the investment firm (ii) the provision of non-independent investment advice come together with: an offer for the client to evaluate at least once in a year the future suitability of the financial instruments wherein the client has invested; or together with another regular nature service which may bring value to the client, e.g. consulting on the offered optimal allocation of the client's assets; or (iii) the possibility to receive various financial instruments for a competitive price that may correspond to the client's needs, including the acceptable number of instruments provided by third parties that do not have close relations with the investment company by also providing either value-added tools (instruments) such as objective information provision tools (instruments) helping the client to make investment decisions or enables the client to monitor, simulate and adjust the range of financial instruments wherein the client has invested, or by providing periodic reports on the results, costs and fees relating to the financial instruments;
 - 2.2.2. The Inducement does not bring direct benefit to the Bank as the receiver, its shareholders or employees without material benefit to the respective client;
 - 2.2.3. The Inducement is justified by the fact that the respective client receives permanent benefit for permanent inducement.

- 2.3. By receiving and paying Inducements, the Bank must make sure that such Inducements enhance the quality of the respective investment services to the client, and collect and store evidence thereof. Pursuant to that the Bank:
- 2.3.1. Keeps the list of all Inducements received from third parties for the provision of investment or ancillary services; and
 - 2.3.2. Registers how the incentives received or paid by the Bank or those that the Bank intends to use enhance the quality of the respective investment services to the client and what actions were taken so as not to impair compliance with the Bank's duty act honestly, fairly and professionally in accordance with the best interests of its clients.
- 2.4. The Bank only can receive or pay Inducements if the Bank properly discloses information on such Inducements to the clients as provided in this Policy, excluding cases mentioned in Article 6.
- 2.5. If the Bank receives the fees, commission fees or any monetary reward that do not comply with the requirements specified above, the Bank transfers them to the respective clients immediately after such payments were received.
- 2.6. The Bank's unit providing respective services to the clients, in order to use or receive any Inducement provided by other person than the Bank, must evaluate whether such Inducement complies with the requirements provided in Section 2 of the Policy. For this purpose, the authorised Bank's unit must be contacted. Authorised unit upon evaluation of the available information decides whether such Inducement complies with the conditions provided in Section 2 of the Policy. Where necessary, the authorised Bank's unit employs other units of the Bank in order to conduct proper evaluation. If upon evaluation it appears that the benefit does not comply with the requirements provided in Section 2 of the Policy, the Bank must not accept and use such benefit. In addition any such non-monetary benefit shall be returned to the provider which must be requested to cease provision of such benefit in the future. In case of monetary benefits, requirements of 2.4 of this Policy shall additionally apply.

3. Limitations related to investment researches

- 3.1. In case an investment research prepared by a third party is required by the Bank for the provision for services, the Bank acquires such research by paying the price for the research from own funds.
- 3.2. Having received any investment research free of charge or any other similar service which according to the above procedure is considered as acceptable Inducement, the Bank puts such Inducement received on the list as provided by paragraph 2.3.
- 3.3. In order to avoid situations where the services provided by the Bank are considered to be Inducement by the investment service providers that received such services, the Bank will separately price the services provided thereby, including transaction processing and investment research services and will offer such services for a separate fee set to each of such services.
- 3.4. Payment that Bank applies to its provided services or services enhancement is not connected to the payment that Bank receives for execution of orders.
- 3.5. To avoid potential conflict of interest, the Bank will not provide the individually prepared investment research information to other investment service providers without charge.

4. Disclosing information on Inducement

- 4.1. In the performance of its duty to disclose information on the Inducement, the Bank:
- 4.1.1. Prior to the provision of an investment service to the client, discloses information to the client about the Inducement received and paid (including information on the amounts received from order execution places), and in case the amount cannot be precisely defined, then discloses information on the calculation method. In respect of minor non-monetary benefit, the information is disclosed in the form of a summary. Other non-monetary benefit which the Bank receives or pays in relation to the provision of investment services is priced and specified separately. Where applicable, the Bank also notifies the clients on the procedure for transferring the fee, commission fee and other monetary or non-monetary benefit received by the bank in course of the provision of investment services to the clients.
 - 4.1.2. In case the Bank was not able to recognize the exact amount of provided or received benefit and instead informs Client about calculation method of inducement, then the Bank discloses the precise information about received or paid incentives after such Inducement was received or paid;
 - 4.1.3. As long as the Bank permanently receives Inducement in respect of the provided investment services, the Bank periodically, at least once in a year, indicates the precise amount of the received or paid Inducement to each client. In respect of minor non-monetary benefit, the information is disclosed in the form of a summary.

4.2. In order to comply with the above requirement to disclose to the clients information on the received or paid Inducements related to the services provided to the clients prior to the provision of an investment service, the Bank has prepared the description of the Inducements received and paid which is provided as annex of this Policy.

5. Minor non-monetary benefits

5.1. Minor non-monetary benefits shall be reasonable and proportionate and of such a scale that they are unlikely to influence the Bank's behaviour in any way that is detrimental to the interests of the relevant client.

5.2. Minor non-monetary benefits can be:

- 5.2.1. Information or documentation relating to a financial instrument or an investment service. Such information or documents are generic in nature or personalised provided to reflect the circumstances of an individual client;
- 5.2.2. Written material from a third party that is commissioned and paid for by an corporate issuer or potential issuer to promote a new issuance by the company, or where the third party firm is contractually engaged and paid by the issuer to produce such material on an ongoing basis, provided that the relationship is clearly disclosed in the material and that the material is made available at the same time to any investment firms wishing to receive it or to the general public;
- 5.2.3. Participation in conferences, seminars and other training events on the benefits and features of a specific financial instrument or an investment service;
- 5.2.4. Hospitality of a reasonable de minimis value, such as food and drink during a business meeting or a conference, seminar or other training events, that are mentioned in paragraph 5.2.3.;
- 5.2.5. flowers, souvenirs, books or representation materials, if total price of all received benefits from one person doesn't exceed equivalent of one minimal salary;
- 5.2.6. services and different discounts, that are offered by commercial entities and that are publicly available.

6. Inducement related to portfolio management services

6.1. Providing services portfolio management services, the Bank shall comply with the special procedure related to the Inducement:

- 6.1.1. Fully transfers to the client all and any fees, commission fees or any monetary reward that is paid or provided to the Bank by a third party or a person acting on behalf of a third party for the respective services provided to that client immediately after the receipt of such fees. To this end, the Bank implements and follows the procedure for defining the amount to be refunded to that particular client in cases where the received amount cannot be attributed to the amount refundable to the particular client;
- 6.1.2. At least once a year informs the clients on the fees, commission fees or any other monetary reward transferred thereto by specifying such information in the provided reports;
- 6.1.3. May receive and accept just minor non-monetary benefit which is designed to enhance the quality of services provided to the clients as it is established in this Policy.
- 6.1.4. The Bank's unit providing services of portfolio management, in order to use or receive any non-monetary benefit provided by other person than the Bank, must evaluate whether such non-monetary benefit meets a) the requirements provided in Section 2 of this Policy and b) the requirements of minor non-monetary benefit. For this purpose, the authorised Bank's unit must be contacted. Compliance unit upon evaluation of the available information decides whether such Inducement complies with the conditions provided in Section 2 of the Policy. Where necessary, the authorised Bank's unit employs other units of the Bank in order to conduct proper evaluation. If upon evaluation it appears that the benefit does not comply with such aforementioned conditions, the Bank must not accept and use such benefit. In addition any such non-monetary benefit shall be returned to the provider which must be requested to cease provision of such benefit in the future.
